TimeCapsule

A letter to your future self

TimeCapsule is a small, single-page website where you write a note to your future self, choose a date, and seal it away. The note stays locked until that date arrives. Everything runs in the browser, with no account and no server.

Features

- Create capsules. Give a capsule a title (up to 70 characters), a message (up to 5,000 characters), an unlock date, and an optional feeling.
- Sealed until the date. A capsule cannot be read before its unlock date. The card shows how many days are left.
- Your library. See all capsules at a glance, filter by All, Locked or Unlocked, read unlocked notes, or delete any capsule.
- Live statistics. Counters show the total number of capsules, how many are still waiting, and how many are ready to open.
- Light and dark mode. A switch in the header slides between light and dark. The knob shows a sun in light mode and a moon in dark mode. On a first visit the site follows your device setting.
- Colour themes. The three-dots button next to the switch opens a small panel with Default plus pastel green, blue, red and violet. Tapping a colour recolours the whole page. Every colour works in both light and dark mode.
- Remembers your choices. Your capsules, light or dark mode, and colour theme are saved in your browser.

Good to know

- Capsules are stored in your browser (localStorage) on this device only. They are not uploaded anywhere and do not sync between devices or browsers.
- Clearing your browser data, or using private browsing, will remove saved capsules. Keep a copy of anything important.
- The unlock date is checked against your device clock.
